FOOTPRINTS OF WAR

The battle of Huesca in 1937 lasted just two weeks, but its effects are still with us today. The Republican army and especially the Anarchist section, tried without success, to take Huesca. The anarchists lost 1,000 men in this battle, and great characters like George Orwell were wounded.

At each of the stops on this trip, there is a hidden treasure. To locate it, we provide you with coordinates and a series of clues. We recommend that you download the free application available from <https://www.geocaching.com/play> There you find all our geo-located treasures and clues.

THE DIARY OF A NURSE IN THE SIEGE OF HUESCA

Agnes was an Australian nurse who arrived as a volunteer in 1937 to care for the war wounded and worked in the hospitals at Grañén, Poleñino and Sariñena.

Her diary: "One mile from Huesca - Diary of an Australian nurse in the Spanish Civil War", she recounted the economic and material hardship, as well as the unhygienic conditions of most field hospitals, operating rooms and post-surgical rooms. Agnes tells of the day to day activities of her fellow nurses, doctors, practitioners, ambulance drivers, cooks, stretcher-bearers, cleaners, and the residents of the towns where she worked. She also narrated the few moments of fun, dancing, friendships and even love.

The living conditions of doctors and nurses at the front were very difficult. The days were exhausting and the staff barely had time to clean the operating rooms, wash and disinfect the instruments or take a break to regain strength. The shifts were endless.

We encourage you to visit some of the preserved vestiges of the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939) and of the historic event called "The siege of Huesca". The Republican emplacements surrounded the city of Huesca for 500 days, from June of 1936 to March of 1938, but the city of Huesca resisted and never fell into Republican hands.
